|  | in section 51ABV(2)(b) of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) (the Act). Based on the information currently before it, the ACCC considers that the Acquisition is unlikely to give rise to any material lessening of competition. In particular: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>a. there is a small horizontal overlap between LTM and FinXL in the supply of IT consulting services, infrastructure implementation and management services and application implementation and management services in Australia, and the increase in share of supply arising from the Acquisition for each of these services would be small</li><li>b. there are alternative suppliers of IT consulting services, infrastructure implementation and management services, and application implementation and management services in Australia.</li></ul> The ACCC has also had regard to the likelihood that, if the Acquisition were put into effect, the notification thresholds determined under section 51ABP(1) of the Act would apply. While the ACCC considers that the notification thresholds are likely to be met, given that material competition concerns are unlikely to arise, the ACCC has determined that the Acquisition is not required to be notified. The ACCC considers that the determination is consistent with the object of the Act and the interests of consumers in promoting competition. For more information about the ACCC's approach to considering notification waiver applications and to assessing competition effects more generally, see the ACCC's interim guidance on notification waivers and merger assessment guidelines. |
