MN-90029

Phase 1 Determination

Acquisition may be put into effect

8 September 2026

1. Determination and statement of reasons

Notified acquisition	Bunnings Group Pty Ltd (Bunnings) and Intellihub Australia Pty Ltd (Intellihub) propose to establish an incorporated joint venture to operate their existing unincorporated home renewable energy solutions joint venture which trades as Zelora. The incorporated joint venture will involve: - Bunnings and Intellihub (through related entities) acquiring shares in a newly incorporated entity Zelora TopCo Pty Ltd (which, together with its subsidiaries, is referred to as the Zelora JV); and - the Zelora JV subsequently acquiring the assets used in the existing Zelora business as well as existing assets of Intellihub's Enreal business, (the Acquisition).
Determination	The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission has determined under section 51ABZE(1) of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) that the Acquisition may be put into effect.
Parties to the Acquisition	Bunnings is part of the ASX listed Wesfarmers Group and is a retailer of home improvement and lifestyle products in Australia and New Zealand. Relevantly, Bunnings operates referral programs for the supply of and installation of solar and battery systems, as well as providing home renewable energy products. Intellihub provides multi-utility services, including electricity and water metering as well as technology, installation and maintenance for other energy management services such as solar, batteries and hot water systems, EV charging and virtual power plants. Intellihub also operates Enreal, a business which offers solar, battery and home energy management systems on a subscription or outright basis. Zelora is an unincorporated joint venture between Bunnings and Intellihub that supplies home renewable energy solutions. Its services include supplying, installing and supporting customised solar panel and battery solutions through either a subscription-based or outright purchase model.
Overlap and relationship between the Parties	Bunnings and Intellihub each individually supply renewable energy systems in Australia, as well together through an unincorporated joint venture trading as Zelora.
Reasons for determination	When making a determination in Phase 1, the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (ACCC) undertakes a competition assessment and considers whether it is appropriate for an acquisition to be approved or subject to further assessment in Phase 2 in accordance with section 51ABZJ of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) (the Act). In doing so, the ACCC must have regard to the object of the Act and all relevant matters, including the interests of consumers. For more information about the ACCC's approach to considering notified acquisitions, see the ACCC's merger assessment guidelines and interim merger process guidelines.

	In conducting its competition assessment, the ACCC has considered the information and documents that were submitted with the notification form. The ACCC has determined that the Acquisition may be put into effect as it considers that the Acquisition is unlikely to have the effect of substantially lessening competition in any market. In reaching its decision, and based on the material before it, the ACCC makes the following findings: • The Acquisition involves the incorporation of an existing unincorporated joint venture. There is no material change to the supply of renewable energy systems in Australia arising from the Acquisition • The Zelora JV will continue to face competition from multiple alternative suppliers of renewable energy systems in Australia.
Applications for review	A notifying party, or other person who has been allowed to do so by the Australian Competition Tribunal, may apply for review if they are dissatisfied with the determination. Pursuant to section 100C of the Act, applications for review of the determination are to be made to the Australian Competition Tribunal before the end of 14 calendar days after this statement of reasons was included on the ACCC's Acquisitions Register. To confirm whether there has been any application for review, please contact the Australian Competition Tribunal.
