

Notification Waiver Determination

Apollo Capital – Curia

Acquisition	Apollo Capital Management, L.P. (Apollo Capital) applied for a notification waiver in respect of the proposal by various corporate credit and asset-backed finance-focused funds managed by affiliates of Apollo Capital to indirectly acquire the majority of the equity of UIC Parent Corporation, its subsidiary Curia Global, Inc. and/or the subsidiaries of Curia Global (together, Curia), as described in the transaction documents provided as part of the application (the Acquisition).
Determination	The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission has determined under section 51ABV(1)(a) of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) that the Acquisition is not required to be notified.
Date of determination	16 July 2026

Parties to the Acquisition	Apollo Capital is a wholly owned indirect subsidiary of Apollo Global Management, Inc. (together with its indirect subsidiaries managing the investment funds, Apollo). Apollo is a global alternative asset manager organised under the laws of the United States of America and headquartered in New York. As of 31 March 2026, Apollo had approximately US$1.03 trillion of assets under management. Examples of current investments include, inter alia, companies in education, insurance, financial services, and leisure businesses. The target, Curia, is a US-headquartered global contract research, development and manufacturing organisation. Curia has a range of solutions across the drug development spectrum, including in small molecule, generic active pharmaceutical ingredients, biologics, sterile drug product and analytical testing services.
Explanation for determination	In making this notification waiver determination, the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (the ACCC) has considered the information provided with the notification waiver application and had regard to the factors in section 51ABV(2)(b) of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) (the Act). Based on the information currently before it, the ACCC considers that the Acquisition is unlikely to give rise to any material lessening of competition. In particular: a. there is no horizontal overlap between Apollo and Curia (including their connected entities) in the supply of contract research, development and manufacturing solutions across the drug development spectrum in Australia b. there are no vertical relationships between the products and services supplied by the parties in Australia

	c. there is a low risk of foreclosure or other concerning vertical effects resulting from exclusionary conduct post-acquisition. In these circumstances, the ACCC does not consider it necessary to reach a concluded view on the likelihood of the notification thresholds being met. Given that material competition concerns are unlikely to arise, the ACCC has determined that the Acquisition is not required to be notified. The ACCC considers that the determination is consistent with the object of the Act and the interests of consumers in promoting competition. For more information about the ACCC's approach to considering notification waiver applications and to assessing competition effects more generally, see the ACCC's interim guidance on notification waivers and merger assessment guidelines.
