

MM Security – Micron Security Products

MN-01115

Phase 1 Determination

Acquisition may be put into effect

24 August 2026

1. Determination and statement of reasons

Notified acquisition	MM Security Supplies Pty Ltd (MM Security) proposes to acquire the business assets and goodwill of Micron Alarm Supplies Pty Ltd, trading as Micron Security Products (Micron Security Products) (the Acquisition).
Determination	The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission has determined under section 51ABZE(1) of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) that the Acquisition may be put into effect.
Parties to the Acquisition	The acquirer, MM Security, is a wholly owned subsidiary of MML Holdings Limited, a diversified Australian company which has interests in businesses offering electronic security equipment as well as other products. MM Security operates several separately branded wholesale businesses which source locally produced and imported electronic security equipment, including CCTV systems, intrusion alarm equipment, access control devices, intercom systems and related electronic security equipment and accessories. MM Security has a national footprint operating six separately branded wholesale businesses. The target, Micron Security Products, is an Australian importer and wholesale supplier of electronic security equipment, including CCTV systems, intrusion alarm equipment, intercom systems, access control equipment and related accessories. Micron operates two stores, in Seven Hills, Sydney and Hendra, Brisbane, and provides online retailing nationally.
Overlap between the Parties	MM Security and Micron Security Products overlap in the supply of wholesale electronic security equipment.
Reasons for determination	When making a determination in Phase 1, the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (ACCC) undertakes a competition assessment and considers whether it is appropriate for an acquisition to be approved or subject to further assessment in Phase 2 in accordance with section 51ABZJ of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) (the Act). In doing so, the ACCC must have regard to the object of the Act and all relevant matters, including the interests of consumers. For more information about the ACCC's approach to considering notified acquisitions, see the ACCC's merger assessment guidelines and interim merger process guidelines. In conducting its competition assessment, the ACCC has considered the information and documents that were submitted with the notification form, information from third parties and publicly available information. The ACCC has determined that the Acquisition may be put into effect as it considers that the Acquisition is unlikely to have the effect of substantially lessening competition in any market. In reaching its decision, and based on the material before it, the ACCC makes the following findings. • The increase in market share at the metropolitan or national level resulting from the Acquisition is estimated to be low. • The merged firm would continue to face competition from multiple alternative wholesalers of electronic security equipment, across the relevant geographic areas where the Parties' activities overlap. While some market participants suggested the Acquisition would reduce customers' choice of suppliers, most customers of the Parties considered they would continue to have access to a range of alternative suppliers post-Acquisition.

Applications for review	A notifying party, or other person who has been allowed to do so by the Australian Competition Tribunal, may apply for review if they are dissatisfied with the determination. Pursuant to section 100C of the Act, applications for review of the determination are to be made to the Australian Competition Tribunal before the end of 14 calendar days after this statement of reasons was included on the ACCC's Acquisitions Register. To confirm whether there has been any application for review, please contact the Australian Competition Tribunal.
