

Notification Waiver Determination

Infoblox – Kentik Technologies

Acquisition	Infoblox Inc. (Infoblox) applied for a notification waiver in respect of its proposed acquisition of 100% of the equity interests in Kentik Technologies, Inc. (Kentik), as described in the transaction documents provided as part of the application (the Acquisition).
Determination	The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission has determined under section 51ABV(1)(a) of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) that the Acquisition is not required to be notified.
Date of determination	3 August 2026

Parties to the Acquisition	The acquirer, Infoblox, is jointly owned by Warburg Pincus LLC (Warburg Pincus) and by funds managed and/or controlled by Vista Equity Partners Management, LLC (Vista). Infoblox is a provider of IT automation and security services. Infoblox offers core network management and security solutions for Domain Name System (DNS), Dynamic Host Configuration Protocol (DHCP), and Internet Protocol (IP) address management across on-premise, hybrid, and multi-cloud environments. It also offers asset discovery, DNS-layer threat protection, security analytics, threat intelligence, and related support, professional, education, and managed services delivered directly and through partners. Infoblox is headquartered in Santa Clara, California. The target, Kentik, is a US-based network observability and intelligence software supplier, offering a cloud-based platform that collects, analyses, and contextualises network telemetry data across on-premise, hybrid, and cloud environments. Its network monitoring tools help network administrators to keep track of the health and performance of modern, complex networks. Kentik is headquartered in San Francisco, California. Vista also holds a controlling equity position in LogicMonitor, Inc. (LogicMonitor), a SaaS-based performance monitoring platform for hybrid IT infrastructures and cloud services, which supplies observability software.
Explanation for determination	In making this notification waiver determination, the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (the ACCC) has considered the information provided with the notification waiver application and had regard to the factors in section 51ABV(2)(b) of the Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth) (the Act).

	Based on the information currently before it, the ACCC considers that the Acquisition is unlikely to give rise to any material lessening of competition. In particular: a. there is no horizontal overlap between Infoblox and Kentik in the supply of observability solutions and network performance monitoring b. there is a low risk of foreclosure or other concerning vertical or conglomerate effects resulting from exclusionary conduct, bundling or tying of core network management and security solutions, and observability and network performance monitoring solutions, post-acquisition c. LogicMonitor and Kentik’s combined share in the supply of observability and network performance monitoring solutions in the Asia-Pacific region, and globally, is low and the increase in share of supply arising from the Acquisition would be small d. there are alternative global suppliers of both core network management and security solutions, and observability and network performance monitoring solutions, in Australia. In these circumstances, the ACCC does not consider it necessary to reach a concluded view on the likelihood of the notification thresholds being met. Given that material competition concerns are unlikely to arise, the ACCC has determined that the Acquisition is not required to be notified. The ACCC considers that the determination is consistent with the object of the Act and the interests of consumers in promoting competition. For more information about the ACCC’s approach to considering notification waiver applications and to assessing competition effects more generally, see the ACCC’s interim guidance on notification waivers and merger assessment guidelines.
